Famous Polar Authority

(Special to The Constitution and North American Newspaper Alliance.)

Kingsbay, Spitzbergen.—(By Radio From Steamer Falm.) May 25.—The fourth full day passed this afternoon without news from the Amundsen-Ellsworth polar expedition, and fears of disaster became more pronounced among the watchers at Spitzbergen. We were still trying to be optimistic here at the expedition's base, and our hopes continued to burn brightly, but even the most strong-hearted among us had to admit foreboding of some serious mishap to the six adventurers, whose secret was still hidden in the frozen north.

The hourly suspense grew very trying today with the completion of the fourth-day cycle. Probably the peak of anticipation was reached this afternoon, with our meteorological reports indicating a rapidly rising storm area around the pole.

Oslo, Norway, May 25.—The Shipping Gazette says that the Arctic regions are threatened with storms which, it is thought, will compel Captain Amundsen to return immediately if he is able. The weather forecast is for snow and fog on Wednesday.

WINDS SWEEPING ACROSS DISTRICT.

Oslo, Norway, May 25.—Reports of stormy weather in the Arctic, received here Monday night, increased the apprehension over Capt. Roald Amundsen and his aerial expedition to the north pole. With the beginning of the fifth day since Amundsen's departure, the world is still without advice as to the outcome of his adventure.

The winds which presumably are sweeping across the polar district now, according to weather reports, may have delayed the explorer on his return trip. If the storms continue fierce, flying would be almost impossible.

With each hour that fails to bring word out of the north, fears for the expedition increase, but Amundsen's friends and relatives are still hopeful.

"There is no reason for nervousness," said Amundsen's brother Monday. "Silence does not mean the loss of the airplanes."

Doctor Skattum, president of the Norwegian Geographical society, maintains that it is unlikely that Amundsen landed at the pole. He believed the explorer secretly planned to continue to Alaska and to open a base between East Siberia and Alaska. This district has never been explored and Amundsen planned last year, according to Dr. Skattum, to include it in his trip.

"The flight can and will succeed," Dr. Skattum said Monday night. The view that Amundsen planned

PROGRESS IS SLOW

"Shepherd Is Guilty," Declares Purported Letter From Missing Witness in Philadelphia.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Chicago, May 25.—Selection of a jury to try William Darling Shepherd for the alleged murder of his million aire Foster son, William Nelson McClintock, by administering subtle poisons and typhoid germs, developed into a sharp battle of wit today between Robert E. Crowe, the state's attorney, and William Stewart, chief of defense counsel, but was a losing battle so far as filling the jury box was concerned.

The twelve men locked up tonight included four jurors sworn in last Friday, one venireman tentatively passed by both sides, two questioned by the prosecution state's attorney, and three who had not been examined by either side.

A detective from the state's attorney's office left tonight for Philadelphia to assist the police there in searching for Robert White, described by both prosecution and defense as a much-desired witness. Joseph P. Savage, assistant state's attorney, today received a special letter mailed in Philadelphia Saturday purporting to have been written by White.

Attorney Stewart stated when White's disappearance became known that White had voluntarily signed an affidavit withdrawing his accusations that Shepherd was seen at the National University of Sciences, where White formerly was known as a body-

If a spinster aunt in the Old Ladies Home said it, it would sound quite natural and credible, but it's Benny Leonard speaking, undefeated lightweight champion of the world. "No, I don't like football, it's too rough a game for me."

I asked Benny while we were on the way to witness one of his physical culture demonstrations to the sailors at the Brooklyn navy yard, by invitation of Admiral Plunkett, how he ever came to enter the ring, the story of his retirement being well known.

"Well," said Benny, "my father didn't want to hear of it. One night after my first fight I came home with a couple of black eyes and a $20 bill. Dad was waiting for me with a strap. 'Where did you get those eyes, been fighting?' 'Yes, dad.' 'How often have I got to tell you I don't want you to fight,' said father as he got ready to administer the licking. 'Here you are, dad,' I said, handing him the $20 bill. He softened, looked surprised and asked me, 'When do you fight again, Benny?'"

London must be going jazz crazy and may be overdoing it. All the jazz orchestras are pulling out of New York and sailing across the pond. Ted Lewis and his company are the last to sail. The others are over there already raking in the coin.

Speaking of Lewis, Councilor Bergman, who hails from the same locality in the wide open spaces of the west as Lewis, told me of the start of the famous band Bergman played first fiddle, but also was general organizer. Ted Lewis agreed to play at the village dances Saturday nights for $150 a night. If business was good, the remuneration was to run as high as $25. "Business was never good," says Bergman. But Lewis is getting his $3,000 a week now.

There is an unusual interest in things Russian in New York. Elias Tobekin, the new Russian writer, who is so much in vogue here, positively maintained that an artist of Russian birth had a tremendous advantage over his Italian and French colleagues for instance.

There is also a curious desire to learn more of this so-called Russian mysticism. I look upon that as a result of a world-wide, after-war disillusion. I strolled into a fashionable dress emporium the other morning just at the moment when one of the managers had to make a selection of models for the display of cloaks from about 100 applicants. J. L. Livermore Ceases
Operations in Wall Street, Says Report.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
New York, May 25.—The New York Evening Post says today that Jesse L. Livermore, spectacular Wall Street operator, has quit the stock market. He has not had an office in "The Street" for some years and could not be reached for confirmation or denial of the report.

Livermore, who earned the title of "boy plunger" when he cleaned up his first Wall Street millions while still in his teens, had the market tickers removed from his office several months ago. The Evening Post said that the operator had not bought or sold a share of stock in several months. Although Livermore won and lost several fortunes in the market, the newspaper said he had "quit the street" while still a good fortune ahead. Wall Street, the newspaper adds, refuses to believe that the plunger has quit the market. He is said to be utilizing his entire organization of statisticians and clerks to keep elaborate charts with the latest figures on finance and industry and has devoted virtually all his recent time to dealing in cotton and grain.

ITALIAN EDITOR
GIVEN RELEASE
AFTER 4 MONTHS

Charges Made on Leaving Prison Are "Without Foundation," Say Attaches and Prisoners.

BY PAUL STEVENSON.
Sensational charges that the Atlanta federal penitentiary is "a pest house, a blot upon the nation, a disgrace to any civilized community and a house of shame," made in Sunday's issue of The New York Graphic by Dr. Carlo Tresca, editor of an Italian newspaper published in New York, Monday were characterized as "without foundation" by attaches and prisoners of the institution.

Tresca's charges are perhaps the most sensational ever made by a man who has served "time" in the federal prison here. He was convicted in New York in a federal court on a charge of sending prohibited matter through the mails and sentenced to one year and one day. He was convicted last December and began serving his sentence January 7. His sentence was commuted to four months by President Coolidge and he was released from the prison here May 7.

Blamed Mussolini Government.
After his release Tresca issued a statement to The Constitution in which he declared his prosecution was the result of the enmity of the Mussolini government in Italy, which, he said, had tried to throttle his newspaper. He said the United States government had been led to aid the prosecution, and intimated that the charge against him was "trumped up."

As to conditions in the prison and his life there, he told a Constitution reporter that his prison experience "was a closed book."

Later Tresca went to his home in New York and the article appearing in The New York Graphic is based both on the allegation that the Italian government used the United States government to imprison him, and additional charges relative to conditions in the prison as he saw them.

Summarized briefly the charges that narcotics are sold freely in the prison, that prisoners are bought and sold, that guards are cruel and overbearing, that immorality of a shocking nature is practiced, and that inmates are turned out of the penitentiary in far worse condition morally than when they entered it. He charges he was placed in "the hole," a section of the prison reserved for unruly and insubordinate prisoners, and was forced to remain there in company with a dangerous criminal disease.

When these charges appeared The Constitution began an investigation. Warden John W. Snook said he

SCOPES IS HELD FOR TEACHING
OF EVOLUTION

Indictment Is Returned Against Tennessee Instructor and Trial Is Set for July 10.

STUDENTS TESTIFY
BEFORE GRAND JURY

Witnesses Said Scopes
Believed in Evolution,
But Not in Man's Origin
From Monkey.

Dayton, Tenn., May 25.—John T. Scopes, high school science teacher, was indicted by a Rhea county grand jury here today on a charge of teaching evolution in a public school in violation of the Tennessee law.

The judge set July 10 at Dayton for trial of the case.

The indictment as presented to the grand jury reads: "That John Thomas Scopes hereinafter on the 24th day of April, 1925, did unlawfully and wilfully teach in the public schools of Rhea county, Tennessee, which said public schools are supported in part and in whole by the public school funds of the state certain theory and theories that deny the story of the Divine creation of man as taught in the Bible, and did teach instead thereof that man has descended from a lower order of animals, he, said John Thomas Scopes, being at the time, and prior thereto, a teacher in the public schools of Rhea county, Tennessee, aforesaid against the peace and dignity of the state."

Date Satisfies Bryan.
At least one of the counsel from out of the state of Tennessee expected to take part in the case found the trial date satisfactory. Hicks and Hicks, of the special prosecution counsel, announced tonight receipt of a telegram from William Jennings Bryan, who is to appear in the ranks of the prosecution attorneys. Mr. Bryan's telegram said: "Telegram received. Yes, July date satisfactory to me."

A last-minute change was made in the line-up of the prosecution by the substitution of Walter W. Rappleyea as prosecutor. It was explained by both Mr. White and Mr. Rappleyea that the former had gone in to pinch hit for the latter, as it were, on account of the conflicting views of the two. Mr. White is a fundamentalist and is on record as having written a congratulatory letter to Governor Austin Peay when he signed the act under which a case in evolution and is on record as having written an ardent advocate of evolution theories and instigated the action against Scopes to start a test.

Photographers "Shoot" Court.
The grand jury, made up of a foreman and 12 other members, occupied approximately one hour in agreeing to return a true bill, although there was some delay in getting the issue before the grand jury. A flock of newspaper photographers "shot" Judge Raulston and other persons prominent in the case until the court was unable to sit. The grand jurors could scarcely be seen.

In the personnel of the grand jury, there were in a decided majority. Nine of the 13 follow agriculture. John Rose, the foreman, is a mine foreman, and L. A. Small, a mine superintendent.

L. E. LEONARD FREED
AFTER INVESTIGATION OF KILLING OF GIRLMERGER BATTLE
THREATENS SPLIT
OF PRESBYTERIANS

Unification With Congregationalist Voted After Bitter Wrangle Between Two Factions.

PEACE MOVE BEGUN
TO CURB DISPUTES

Liberals Win First Tilt in Open Clash With Fundamentalists; Delegates Shocked by Encounter.

Columbus, Ohio, May 25.—Extreme moderates and liberals in the Presbyterian church came to grips on the floor of their national assembly for the first time today Monday. The net result of a heated word battle between leaders of the two factions was adoption of a policy looking toward ultimate union of the Presbyterian and Congregational churches in the United States.

Appearance on the floor of the resolution embodying this policy was considered a signal by both factions for a test of strength—"the first real opportunity," as one of the commissioners expressed it, "to determine who is on God's side in this matter."

Liberalism Wins Victory.
Although passage of the resolution was a crushing defeat for the ultra-fundamentalists, it cannot be interpreted as anything more than a passing victory for the ultra-liberals because it drew support from hundreds of the less militant fundamentalists.

The resolution was introduced by the Cleveland presbytery and provided specifically for "full cooperation between individual Congregational and Presbyterian churches." Its passage puts the denomination on record as in sympathy with the creed of the Congregationalists and opens the way for trial unions between individual presbyteries and synods.

Dr. Clarence E. Macartney, of Philadelphia, former moderator and an ultra-fundamentalist, leaped to his feet as soon as the resolution was introduced and asked permission to read sections from the Congregationalist creed.

Split Is Threatened.
When he had finished, Dr. Macartney gave the powerful New York Liberal wing of the assembly and declared:

"I leave it to the most Liberal members of the Presbytery of New York to tell us whether in the last 50 years the Congregational church has not been drifting toward a point more remote from the standard of our church."

"This sounds like a move toward unity, but if you want to split the Presbyterian church wide open, just go on with exchanges with the Congregationalist church."

Dr. Macartney then proposed an amendment providing that any union with the Congregationalists be strictly on the basis of the Presbyterian creed.
The amendment was promptly defeated, as soon as he had surrendered the floor, liberalists began popping up on every side, demanding that they be heard. Moderator Charles R. Erdman gave the floor to the Rev. J.
Duncan Hartley, of Whitefish, Mont., who declared the union plan had worked well in Canada, where his people came from.

The Rev. Mr. Hartley then shocked the assembly by accusing Dr. Macartney of telling "deliberate falsehoods."
Macartney had described the Canadian Church union as "tragic."

"That statement is a deliberate lie," said Dr. Macartney.

TWO SPEED BOATS
WILL RACE TRAIN
DOWN HUDSON RIVER

Albany, N. Y., May 25.—Garwood, Detroit speedboat builder, tonight had his "Baby Gar IV" and "Baby Gar V" in readiness for a dash of 140 miles down the Hudson river from Albany to New York in an effort to beat the scheduled time of the Twentieth Century Limited.
Six airplanes were to accompany the boats and train, two for broadcasting the progress of the trip, one as a passenger transport and three for photographers.

The speed boats will start their run at 6:25 o'clock, eastern standard time, as the crack flier of the New York Central railroad swings across the Maiden Lane bridge here. Only rain will halt the event.

CAILLAUX TAX PLAN
RAISES REVENUES
OF FRENCH STATE

French Taxpayers Asked
To Pay $100,000,000 More in 1925, and Treble That Amount in 1926.

Paris, May 25.—France will dig deeper into her pockets than ever before if the proposal submitted to parliament Monday by Finance Minister Caillaux meet approval.

Under the terms of the project by which Caillaux intends to blow fresh into the franc, taxpayers will increase their contributions to the state by $100,000,000 during this year and $300,000,000 in 1926.

After determining the most likely sources to supply these additional funds, the presence of which undoubtedly would do much toward financial reanimation, the minister has proposed five different methods. These may be classified, briefly, as follows:

Five Methods Proposed.
1.—Imposition to a most severe super-tax upon assurance companies and oil importers and dealers, because a virtual monopoly exists in these classifications.

2.—Taxation of farmers to the same degree as merchants are taxed under existing law.

3.—Changes in the income tax law providing for a system of variable taxes according to the source of taxes.
A 10 per cent tax on salaries of more than 20,000 francs; 15 per cent on incomes comprising both salary and dividends; and 20 per cent on dividends exclusively.

4.—Strict collection of taxes, allowing no evasions.

5.—Slight increases in the price of tobacco and of postal and telegraph rates.

Only Two Remedies.
In submitting the proposal, Caillaux dwelt lengthily on the condition of the national finances.

"There are only two remedies," he said, "economies and hard work. Taxpayers must be treated inexorably and without distinction. All other plans are chimerical."

He urged that the Dawes payments be not included in the 1925 budget because they were unrecalled.

SHOOTING OCCURS

Wedding of Victim Was Scheduled for Next Month—Last Services in Fitzgerald Today.

Impelled to investigate the death of Miss Grayce Bowles, 19, a boarder in the home of Mrs. B. C. Norton, at 303 North Moreland avenue, who was shot to death just before dawn Monday by L. E. Leonard, another boarder, a coroner's jury Monday afternoon returned a verdict of justifiable homicide.

The jury announced this decision with testimony taken by the DeKalb county coroner showed that Miss Bowles was slain by Leonard when the latter mistook her for a burglar in his room.

Leonard, who had been during the day at police station on a charge of disorderly conduct in connection with the shooting, was released following the coroner's probe of which Dr. W.
S. Anley was foreman. Later the charges were dismissed by Recorder
A. W. Calloway.

Wedding Set for June.
Miss Bowles was to have been married in June to Howard W. Talmadge, 24, of 28 West Peachtree street, it was learned Monday.

Plans for a simple home wedding had been made. Miss Bowles had expressed a desire that the wedding be a quiet affair, with only a few close friends present.

Talmadge was visibly shaken when he visited the funeral parlor of H. M.
Patterson & Son Monday afternoon.
After viewing the dead body of his fiancee, he was led away by a friend.

Leonard Expresses Sorrow.
Both Leonard and his wife expressed intense sorrow over the tragedy, and others from the boarding house who attended the inquest and described the scene following the discovery of the tragedy told of her popularity among her associates.

Miss Melba Chawning, one of her closest friends, who is employed in the auditing department of the Georgia Railway & Power company, where Miss Bowles was employed, told of a premonition Miss Bowles had experienced that "something was going to happen to her." Miss Chawning said the dead girl had wanted to change boarding houses because of this feeling, and that she had helped her search for another place.

The body was taken Monday night to Fitzgerald, accompanied by members of her family.

Leonard, on the stand, stated that he was awakened by his wife at about 3:30 o'clock and fired with fatal effect at his fellow-boarder, who is believed to have entered the Leonard's room in order to reach their private bath. It is further believed that Miss Bowles was approaching their bed to

Butler Making Preparations To Tour Northwestern States For G. O. P. Congress Ticket

Democrats Up in 1926 Certain of Relection, While Many of 26 G. O. P. Senators Are in Danger.

BY MARK SULLIVAN.
Washington, May 25.—Nothing could better illustrate the forebodingness of the republican party organization, a quality akin to careful business-like methods, than the fact that the presence in Washington last week of National Chairman Butler and the plans he announced. It was a hot week. Politics was at low ebb. About as many people were thinking of the congressional elections next year as were thinking of the Ming dynasty in China.

But it was just in that week that Chairman Butler left his cool home in Massachusetts, came to Washington, spent his evenings at the white house and his days at the headquarters of the national republican committee and announced plans carefully matured for a trip he will take late this summer into all the states of that northwestern territory, which is the republican danger spot. He will go personally into some 12 states and confer with something like a thousand republican county chairmen. It will be ordered in a way, this painstaking, systematic New England business man going straight into the territory where insurgency against the republicans is most general. But it is painstaking and business-like. It illustrates the forebodingness of the republicans, and it illustrates also their frank need for everything that early preparation can do for them.

To the republicans, next year is practically as important as a presidential year. Further than that, "public opinion" success or failure next year will go far toward determining their fate in the ensuing presidential year. It happens that a very unusual combination of circumstances makes it at one and the same time very important that they should.

In the present senate the republicans have a narrow majority of 14. When seven insurgent republicans leave them, they have no majority at all. That is what happened in the matter of confirming Coolidge's appointment of Charles B. Warren to the cabinet. As the senate stands, the republicans are, as everybody knows, in a most perilously unstable position. In the elections next year, they cannot possibly add a single one to their senatorial strength. On the contrary, it is practically certain they must lose some senatorial seats.

Democrats Certain of Election.

Of the 33 vacancies to be filled, seven are democrats. Those democrats come from Alabama, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Arkansas and Louisiana, all of them states which the democrats cannot possibly lose. On the other hand, 26 republicans come up for reelection. It would be almost a miracle for the republicans to keep all those 26 seats. Some of the republican vacancies occur in such doubtful states as Maryland, Missouri, Nevada, Oklahoma and Kentucky. Other vacancies are in states only slightly less doubtful: New York, Indiana, Ohio. That the republicans will lose some of their seats seems almost certain. It is not only that the republicans must fight hard to keep their present slender majority. Further than that, it happens that practically all the republican senatorial leaders and wheel-horses are among those who come up for reelection. The official republican leader of the senate, Curtis of Kansas, comes up. The republican president pro tem of the senate, Moses of New Hampshire, comes up. The head of the finance committee, Reed Smoot of Utah, comes up.

Butler Opposed by Walsh.
Senator Butler himself comes up and will have to run against one of the strongest democratic vote-getters in Massachusetts, ex-Senator David Walsh. Senator Butler is important as chairman of the national committee and an intimate of President Coolidge. So important a republican senator as Wadsworth, of New York, is among those who must go before the people next year. So is Senator Watson, of Indiana. Cummings, of Iowa; Jones, of Washington; Lenroot, of Wisconsin; McKinley, of Illinois; Pepper, of Pennsylvania; and a host of others.

At nearly all of these, it can be said that the loss of almost any one would be the loss of the cornerstones of strength and a symbol of prestige. In the event of a republican calamity, that is the reason for Chairman Butler's foreboding trip through the northwest. He already knows more about the county chairmen he will see than they realize. He knows about them in a way characteristic of a business man. During the presidential election last year, he was far from speechless and the press, which had stressed heavily by attorneys for the two papers which had been indicted, these "helpful" words in the Baltimore Post, a Scripps-Howard newspaper, and the Kansas City Journal-Post, indictments against whom were finally dismissed by federal courts had dismissed the indictments, but the government had appealed.

The court confined itself strictly to the legal points involved, holding that there was no conflict in statutes enacted by congress, as had been claimed. Congress, in voting public income tax returns, but with the proviso, "except as provided by law." This provision legalized the new statute, the court held. The old statute also provided for complete returns, and the new provided simply for publication of "payments."

The decision of the court, which was brief, was as predicted when argument in the case was concluded. It was also pointed out at that time that the court would confine itself to the legal points involved.

The regular question of the publicity of returns will be issued by the treasury to all income tax collectors when the decision has been studied. There was considerable confusion before, because of the lack of preparation by the collectors for the rush which set in from all sides, and because of a misunderstanding as to just what the publicity provided allowed.

Whether several separate lists will be made for public inspection, so that there will be a little interruption as possible to the regular work of the offices, has not been determined, but that is likely. It was indicated at the treasury Monday that there would be no time limit, as previously, but that the lists would be left available indefinitely.

This decision is seen to open up again the question of repeal of the publicity provision, which was agitated after the lists had been made public last year. Some of those who voted for publicity have since indicated that they would vote for repeal, while Senator Norris, of Nebraska, who introduced the original provision, says he will seek to have the complete returns published, if the question is re-opened.

Commerce Refused.
Secretary of the Treasury Mellon declined to comment Monday as to the possibility of initiating a movement for repeal. He has not considered it, and he believes it is a matter for congress. Mellon, however, sees nothing to make it wise to continue the publicity, it was said. He was pointed out at the treasury that the amount of payment does not give a true picture of income, because of a number of factors. Additional taxes have been levied, and refunds may be involved, it is explained. A man with a large income might not show a large payment in one year, while a man with a small income, on the other hand, might show a heavy tax for various reasons.

Declares Shepherd Guilty.
The writer declared he was "just commencing to fight Shepherd and his gang," and would come back. "Shepherd is guilty," said the writer, whose signature was virtually identical with the signature signed by White for the rented car in which he is said to have disappeared. "Shepherd is guilty, I must admit," it ran, "and he knows I know it, and God help him when I get back. His bunch made a nervous wreck of me and also made me write a statement against my will. I am just commencing to fight Shepherd and his gang."

It was Fauman's testimony that he had provided typhoid germs and taught Shepherd how to kill young McClintock with them which resulted in Shepherd's indictment. Fauman was indicted also, but was granted a separate trial and the state's attorney's questioning of venetrem today indicated Fauman might escape trial through a grant of immunity for his testimony against Shepherd.

Contempt of court proceedings against James Callan, Chicago ward politician, charged with representing himself as employed by Shepherd's defense and "approaching" a venetrem, was continued today until Wednesday.

State's Attorney Crowe tonight said he expected to investigate all the cases handled in the last six months by Stewart and W. O'Brien, Shepherd's attorneys.

In a formal statement Mr. Stewart said he welcomed any investigation Mr. Crowe cared to make and declared that it was being conducted only to frighten prospective jurors because the state realized it had no case against his client.

New Orleans, May 25.—(By the Associated Press.)—The new Louisiana anti-mask law was upheld today by the state supreme court, which affirmed the conviction of Earl and Lee Craig, brothers of Rapides parish, charged with violating the law. The Craig brothers were sentenced to serve from 3 to 5 years. It was charged that wearing hoods they went to the home of a man in Rapides parish and tried to flog him, but that his outcries aroused neighbors who saved him.

Graduates of Tech High school will be entertained tonight by the Parent-Teacher association of Tech High with a dinner-dance at the roof garden of the Ansley hotel.

BY THOMAS L. STOKES.
Washington, May 25.—Income tax payments will be opened again about July 1, both to the public and to the newspapers, whose right to publish them has been upheld by the supreme court.

Because of the necessary approval of all assessments by the internal revenue bureau here, which requires time, treasury officials have tentatively fixed July 1 as the date for publication, though it may be earlier. These will reveal the payments on income tax returns filed by March 15.

The victory for the newspapers, which published column after column of payments last year in the face of a treasury warning, came Monday. The supreme court, holding that publication was legal, stated that "this information cannot be regarded otherwise than public property under the congressional enactment."

TAX PUBLICATION UPHeld BY COURT

Washington, May 25.—(By the Associated Press.)—The Coronado coal case was sent back to the western Arkansas district court today by the supreme court with instructions that it determine whether District No. 21 of the United Mine Workers of America, affiliated unions and certain individuals were guilty of restraining interstate commerce and violating the Sherman anti-trust act, and were liable for treble damages as a result of strike disorders in 1914. The decision definitely eliminated the international union from the proceedings as defendant.

The case is an outgrowth of the destruction of property of the Coronado and affiliated coal companies in Arkansas during strike disorders in 1914, when federal troops had to be sent to the scene to restore order.

After Sunday's setback along the upper Ouergua river, in which the Djibella tribesmen suffered 700 fatalities, the above dispatch indicates a subsequent surprise attack, according to a dispatch covering the situation, as outlined in a communique issued at Rabat, the enemy was believed concentrating somewhere along the western sector. It would seem that before attempting to consolidate lines against the French, the Djibellans, possibly under a pretended retreat, attacked the unsuspecting eastern front.

Krim is charged with having instructed his forces to attack tribes loyal to the French, and to burn their villages and crops. It is reported semi-officially in Paris that reinforcements of 10,000 men are en route to Morocco, bringing the available number of effective troops to 30,000.

NAT G. LONG, GEORGIA STUDENT, HONORED AT YALE
New Haven, Conn., May 25.—(Special.)—Nat G. Long, of Pendergrass, Ga., has been elected president of the class of 1926 of the Yale Divinity school. Mr. Long is an honor graduate of the University of Georgia, class of 1920.

This is his second year here, and since he has been here he has led his class in scholarship, having won two of the highest honor scholarships offered each semester. He served this year as a member of the student council.

RIFFIAN ALLIES SCORE VICTORY OVER FRENCH

Fes, Morocco, May 26.—(Tuesday.) The French have begun a great offensive against the stubborn Riff tribesmen under Abd-El-Krim.

All three troop columns of the French army in Morocco are engaged in the drive.

Fes, Morocco, May 25.—Reluctant admission of victories by the Djibella tribe, which repulsed and joined the Riffs, is contained in the latest communique governing activities along the Spanish front.

The Djibella warriors made such gains in the region of Tahat that a column of reinforcements was sent out from Larache.

On the eastern front and along the central lines, the situation is reported at a standstill, but infiltrations continue. A council of war to decide the course of future operations was held Monday by Generals Chambrun, Billotte, Heusch and Daugan.

Beautiful Awnings Spread City's Fame Throughout South

For many years awnings on residences and stores were taken to mean only protection and comfort, but the progressive strides made by the Atlanta Manufacturing company in designing special awnings to bring out architectural lines and in harmonizing color schemes has proved that the right kind of awnings are of much more value than the casual person may believe.

The Atlanta Manufacturing company, at 221 1/2 Stewart avenue, an "Atlanta firm" is owned and operated by Harold James Couch, B. M. Clay and L. D. Callahan—the three C's. The C-C-C brand of awnings, so popular among buyers and which are contributing much to making Atlanta the awning center of the south, is manufactured exclusively by this firm.

Experts in the employ of this firm, who may be reached at West 0196, are prepared to furnish all information a prospective purchaser may desire regarding awnings and such materials. Color schemes to bring out desired effects, to blend appropriately with existing architectural lines, and ranging in line from plain striped patterns to the special hand-painted and Oriental designs are available.

ALABAMA BEATS CRACKERS IN LITTLE ROCK OPENER

Alabama Defeats Vanderbilt for Championship Commodores Are Shut Out In Deciding Game, 2 to 0, Through Airtight Playing

University, Ala., May 25.—A base on balls, a stolen base and a wild throw gave Alabama one run; two concentrated hits gave her another, the sum total, 2, all scored in the first inning, the margin of Alabama's 2-to-0 victory over Vanderbilt here Monday.

The game decided for Alabama a very robust claim to the Southern Conference championship. Her record stands 14 victories in 17 starts, facing Georgia Tech, Georgia, Mississippi A. & M., Mississippi, Kentucky and Vanderbilt. Tech, A. & M. and Vanderbilt each won one game.

Tubbs' perfect pitching led Alabama to victory, which clinched the claim so tightly. He allowed only one runner to reach third until the ninth, when his only walk, two hits and a stolen base complicated matters, from which Cohen's excellent fielding extracted the embarrassing tide from a dangerous situation.

Moss pitched little less effectively, but the two-run lead, technically earned in the first inning, broke his streak of college wins. He struck out eight men while Tubbs whiffed six. Both men were near perfect in control, giving only one base on balls each in breach of ball discipline. Alabama scored when Gillis walked, stole second on the first ball and continued to home plate when Miller overthrew second into center field. Elbert's double with two down was followed by Connatser's single for the second run.

Connatser's superb first-base play saved several situations and Cohen's workmanlike fielding at short was outstanding throughout the game. Alabama's three errors went for nothing when Tubbs invariably tightened up to pull through.

Connatser and Green each singled

ROBBY NAMED PRESIDENT OF DODGERS

New York, May 25.—Uncle Wilbert Robinson, a baseball man for 40 years, has been elected president of the firm that operates the Brooklyn Dodgers, succeeding his late boss, Uncle Charlie Ebbets, who died just after the start of the present season. Robinson was elected to the board of directors, as well, and henceforth will have to concern himself very seriously with budgets and ledgers and other sordid tomes which did not figure in his previous baseball experience.

For the rest of this season at least, Robinson, one of the most popular characters in baseball today, notwithstanding that he hasn't appeared in a box-score since 1905, will continue to manage the field hands in battle. Next spring, however, it may be found advisable to retire him from the bench and the coaching box to the swivel chair and the counting room for good, in order that the double responsibility may not overburden his aged shoulders.

Robinson was the only one of three elderly sages in the Brooklyn firm to pull through a winter of dispiriting. He spent months on his bed in Baltimore hospital, but his reserve strength, developed in the ball yard, pulled him through. Elbert spent the winter in Florida and lacked the vitality to recover. Ed McKeever, another of the owners, died of a cold which he contracted at Ebbets' funeral.

There were three vacancies on the board and the presidency to be filled when the representatives of the McKeever and Ebbets heirs met Monday. Uncle Wilbert was first named a member of the board and then chosen head of the firm.

Robinson, a member of the old Baltimore Orioles and a playing contemporary of Kid Gleason, was Willie Keeler and John McGraw. He has been the only manager capable of winning pennants with the modern Brooklyn club. He took the team to 1916 and another in 1920. Last year his team chased the Giants to the finish. And now, he did it with a club of dodging and dodging rookies who at the start of the season seemed to be outclassed.

Favorite Missing on Eve of English Derby Running

London, May 24.—His majesty, King George V., a Sussex butcher, a Shanghai broker—these are among the owners of horse flesh who have thrants in that great racing classic, the Derby, Wednesday, and to judge from the present uncertainty over favorites, they all have an equal chance to win. The day dawned high and fine, and the increasing temperature of everyone, from shop girls and office boys to the widely-known occupants of Buckingham palace, is this year aggravated by the task of selecting a winner from the most open field the derby has seen in many years.

There is no outstanding horse among the entries as they now stand, although there have been at least a dozen horses who have figured in the hottest fights within the past few weeks. One by one the favorites have been reduced to the ranks, leaving even the odds experts consulting dream books and fortune tellers.

D'PAOLO SETS NEW TRACK RECORD

Indianapolis, Ind., May 25.—(Special.)—The record of the Little Rock, Ark., May 25.—(Special.)—After polite and repeated efforts to contribute a game to the Southern league lead of the Crackers, the Travelers finally reached the conclusion that Niehoff's boys were not very grateful guests and took today's contest for themselves, 3 to 0.

Saying that the Travelers were trying to donate a game to the visitors means that everybody on the Little Rock side, except Rube Robinson, seemed perfectly willing for the Georgia delegation to take it.

Rube had the old Indian sign on the Crackers this afternoon and they couldn't do a thing in the world with his offerings. To give a fair example of his effectiveness this afternoon, it might be said that the big left hander didn't do a thing but strike out. He was out twice in succession and held Atlanta's dependable batsman hitless all the afternoon.

Gazella got two hits off the Rube. Smith likewise obtained a couple, each getting a double and a single. In addition to these Frankie Zoeller, who is at home in these parts, connected for a double but with the exception of the three Atlanta hitters mentioned above, not a single man got even a scratch hit off Rube's delivery.

Tommy Milton, the great, who holds the official record of 1:23.5—an average of better than 100 miles an hour—has been working in the prima donna's garage at the head of gasoline line behind closed doors for more than a week and the pits buzzards expect him to go after the speed record when he gets his new speed creation properly broken in.

Then there is Earl Cooper, the veteran, in a junior 8, who is turning practice laps in 1:22 flat with little effort. It is known that Cooper is the worst man at practice on the track. He never can ride fast until he gets in the traffic of competition when he gets his new speed creation properly broken in.

Ralph De Palma, who took his two cars to Detroit so that he could work on them without interruption, has returned to the track and is ready for action. He has as his teammate L. L. Corum, an Indianapolis youngster who teamed with the late Joe Boyer in winning last year's race.

Hill To Be Real Contender.

Bennett Hill, who is up on Harry Miller's list of wheel drive, beyond doubt the most attractive automobile that ever put in an appearance here, has been clicking off fast laps with most regularity and will be a real contender.

The time trials for the big drive start Tuesday, May 26, and the driver making the fastest ten miles on that day, under the official clock, will get the pole position in the race.

There will be a speedy fight for the front positions at the start of the race because of the added prize purse of $30,000 distributed at the rate of $100 to the driver across the finish wire first in each lap.

Travelers Knock in Three Runs in Seventh for Win; Fittery Hurls for Niehoff

RULE CHANGES FOR PREP LEAGUE

Only four schools were represented at the final meeting of the prep league directors Monday afternoon at the Atlanta Athletic club, but two amendments to the league constitutions were adopted.

University school and Tech High will, in all probability, clash on the grid next fall, provided both eleven have fairly successful seasons, it was learned and the probable date for the classic is December 12, the late date being necessitated because of already full schedules.

Coach Joe Bean, of Marietta, president of the league, Coach Tolbert of Tech High; Captain Morrow, of G. M. A., and President White, of University, were the members present. Boys High and Decatur were unrepresented.

The constitutional amendments dealt with eligibility rulings on players, in respect to number of years one may play and to forms of protests.

One amendment makes a prep league athlete entitled to four years' play in any or all branches of sport, regardless of whether those four years are taken consecutively after infiltration at the senior level or extend over a period of years, broken by non-residence and non-attendance.

The other amendment has to do with protests, a set form now being necessary. The rule now is that if one school thinks a player on another league team is ineligible, the protesting school has to make a protest directly to the school playing the doubtful man, and in time before the date of the game to permit that school to investigate its man. Later, the protest may be made to the league, if the two institutions continue to disagree over the man's eligibility, and left up to the jurisdiction of the league arbitrator, Al Doonan.

A definite date was set for the next meeting of the league, the Monday in October being named. At that time basketball schedules will be drawn up and courts for league games settled. It was also agreed to extend invitation at that time to Fulton High, Commercial High and Marietta High to enter the league.

TRIS SPEAKER IS SUSPENDED

Cleveland, May 25.—Manager Tris Speaker and Second Baseman Joe Klugman have been suspended indefinitely for protesting a decision of Umpire Clarence Rowland in Saturday's game with New York, for which both were ejected from the game. Notice of the suspension was received today before the Indians departed for St. Louis.

The argument arose when Rowland called Klugman out at the plate, the Indians claiming Catcher Steve O'Neill failed to touch him as he slid in.

STARS BEATEN IN BRITISH AMATEUR

Westward Ho, May 25.—(By the Associated Press.)—The first day's play of the British Amateur golf championship brought about the downfall of two of the "big three" stars favored above all others to capture the title and the trophy.

The reigning champion, Sir Ernest Holderness, was beaten on the eighteenth green by the Argentine champion, Robert A. Cruickshank, a native of Scotland, who for five years has lived in Buenos Aires. Roger Wethered, who held the amateur title two years ago, was vanquished by Douglas Grant, a former California champion and an American by birth who for several years has had his home and business in England.

The margin of Grant's victory, achieved by golf that was sound and steady in every shot, was two holes up with one to play. The defeat of Wethered and Holderness leaves only Cyril Tolley remaining of the big three of British amateur golf world.

Tolley today defeated Hans Saneck, of Hamburg, first German ever entered in a British golf competition, 4 and 3.

Of the Americans here to play in this championship only two were called on to show their wares today. One of them, S. F. Dalley of the Oakhill club, Rochester, N. Y., got through with a victory over C. D. Maddison of the Temple Golf club, by two up and one to play. The other, L. V. Cochrane, of the Onwensia club of Chicago, was conquered on the 18th green by last year's British boy champion, a 19-year-old Scotsman, Archibald Mathieson, of Edinburgh.

The other two Americans R. A. Stranahan of the Inverness club, Toledo, Ohio, and A. E. Burne, of Garder, City, N. Y., both drew first round runs and will not play until tomorrow.

Except for the defeats of Wethered and Holderness there were no upsets in today's play. In fact the defeat of Wethered was not in reality an upset because Grant for several years has been one of the best amateurs in this country. The only thing that has prevented his selection as a member of the Walker cup team and other international teams has been his American nationality.

Yes, Joan and Tom Are Supremely Happy

THEIR horizon—only a few days ago as blue as indigo—is as rosy as a sunset on the Caribbean. . . . You see it was like this: Joan and Tom had EVERYTHING to make them happy—a darling little new brick bungalow—a brand new coupe—and a future that winds all around the world and ends in the tallest peak of the highest cloud—you know how it is! That is, Tom and Joan THOUGHT they had everything to make them happy—till they realized summer would be just as hot as ever—and that somehow they DIDN'T have quite as much money as ever—what with the little new brick bungalow and the brand new coupe.

"Oh, well, we won't bother—if Bess and Jack ARE going to Asheville for two months—we can have just lots of fun making our little home as cool as Jack's shack on Baldy!"—from Joan.

And then the black cloud settled—as Joan realized it takes a little money to bring mountain breezes to a broiling city.

But this isn't a sob story after all—for it wasn't so very long till Joan discovered Rich's Club Plan. Her heart was light as new breakfast room draperies as she danced in with this thrilling news for Jack. "It's going to be easy after all, Old Dear. We can get EVERYTHING we need right now at Rich's Sale prices—and pay just a little cash—" and she told all about Rich's plan of divided payments—which YOU may enjoy, too, of you wish!

Interesting Social Affairs Fill Calendar Today

Society is interested today in the annual opening of the terrace at the Piedmont Driving Club, which will take place this evening following the election of officers. The occasion will assemble many members from the exclusive ranks of Atlanta society who will dine and dance on the cool, softly-lighted picturesque terrace, overlooking the beautiful club grounds. Charming visitors will come in for their share of parties, Miss Helen Mowrey, of Stamford, Conn.; Mrs. James Meegan, of Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Roger Jones, of Selma, Ala.; and Miss Marjorie Weldon, of New York, will all be honor guests today.

Miss Breedlove Weds Charles Fleetwood.

Miss Mary Breedlove of Valdosta, Ga., and Charles Green Fleetwood, Jr., of Savannah, were united in marriage at Aiken, S. C., on Saturday, May 25.

The sudden wedding came as a surprise to the many friends of the couple over the state, since the former Miss Breedlove was a student at Ames Scott College, in her senior year.

She was chosen as the most beautiful member of her class in the annual May Day exercises and crowned queen of the May. She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Dan Breedlove, of Valdosta, Ga.

The groom, formerly a student at Georgia Tech, and popular member of the Theta Chi fraternity, is with the Central of Georgia railway as a civil engineer. As "Red" Fleetwood, he won fame as a center of Tech's football team, alternating at that position with Claire Frye in 1923.

After spending Sunday in Atlanta the couple left for a trip, after which they will be at home with the parents of the groom in Savannah.

Garden Club Holds Inspection Tour.

The members of the Peachtree Garden club in lieu of their regular meeting on Monday made a tour of a group of lovely gardens of prominent Atlanta matrons.

The club members gathered at the home of Mrs. Cobb Caldwell on Peachtree road, first inspecting the beautiful gardens there, going later to those of Mrs. John Grant, Mrs. Phineas Calhoun, Mrs. Jesse Draper, Mrs. Henry Newman and Mrs. Cam Dorsey.

At Mrs. Dorsey's home tea was served in alfresco fashion. Mrs. Raymond Sullivan of New York, sister of the hostess, was an admired visitor and assisted in entertaining. After tea an important business meeting was held, plans for the nature and the time of the next meeting being made.

Miss Betty Yopp Celebrates Fifth Birthday at Lovely Party

Of wide interest to the very young social contingent was the beautiful children's party at which Mrs. John Yopp entertained Monday afternoon at her home on Westminster drive in celebration of the fifth birthday of her lovely little daughter, Betty.

A charming arrangement of summer flowers adorned the room where the young guests were received, the color motif of lavender, pink and yellow featuring the profusion of roses, sweet peas and snapdragons.

Tea was served from a beautifully appointed table in the dining room which held as a central decoration a handsome three-tiered birthday cake embossed in lilies of the valley. Surrounding the cake was a dainty miniature Dresden figure, surrounded by five tiny white candles in rosette holders. Attractive imported favors were distributed during the afternoon, each little girl being presented with a doll dressed in lovely Dresden shades, and each little boy receiving a well fitted battleship. Novelty poppers, lollipops and toy balloons were other interesting favors.

RUGS and Draperies

1. Because our policy of buying and selling for CASH enables us to sell on an average of 22-10 per cent less than you ordinarily pay for the same merchandise. That this is an absolute fact can be proved to your entire satisfaction by a visit to our store.

2. Because this is a store rendering a highly specialized service. Every member of our sales force is an expert in his line, and it stands to reason that we are better equipped to serve you in the selection of rugs and draperies than some store that carries this line as one of many

Your Query

How other women never lose a day's charm

Just try this NEW way that solves woman's oldest hygienic problem so amazingly

SOME women are fresh and charming every day. Never is a day lost.

Their secret is simple...
Just correct personal hygiene.

Follow it... see what a great difference it makes to you.

Modern science has supplanted the old-time sanitary pad with a better, safer way.

Wear filmy frocks and gayest gowns, dance, motor, come in contact with others with never a worry. Live every day of your life, unhandicapped.

This new way is Kotex...
a method scientifically right.

It absorbs 5 times the moisture of the ordinary cotton pad. And that means great protection.

It is as easily disposed of as a piece of tissue—that ends an old-time embarrassment.

It is deodorized. And that prevents danger of offense.

You get it at any department store or drug store, just by saying "Kotex." And that banishes the embarrassment of asking for a "sanitary pad."

8 in every 10 women in the better walks of life have adopted it. Which proves its benefits.

It will mean much to you in health, in daintiness and protection. It proves old ways a needless folly.

Protection: 5 times as absorbent as cotton pads.
Absorbs 15 times its own weight in moisture—and scientifically deodorized.

2 No laundry. Discard as easily as a piece of tissue.

3 Easy to buy, anywhere.
You ask for them by name.
Many stores keep them ready-wrapped—help
yourself, pay the clerk,
that is all.

No laundry—discard as easily as a piece of tissue

Featuring Today and Wednesday Incomparably Beautiful Wash Fabrics For the Frocks of Summer

The Store of Quality Town
An Editorial
BY JAMES WALLEN

In every community there are people who make of living a fine art and to whom quality is a law of life.

In Atlanta and the South these quality folk are patrons and adherents of the store of Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose. It is here that they center their purchases.

The proprietors of this famed establishment realize that Benjamin Franklin was right when he said: "Glass, china and reputations are easily cracked and never well mended."

So every transaction is guarded with the sword of truth and the armor of integrity under the banner of quality.

When you visit the store of Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose, you realize how beautiful and marvelously varied is the work of human hands. Here is the woven gold and the full flower of craftsmanship.

In this house the price of merchandise is not what can be gotten for it nor what the public may be expected to pay, but a correct valuation.

This fair appraisal of wares has done much to make Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose the great store of quality town and of the South.

BEAUTY CHATS BY EDNA K. FORBES.

ANSWERED LETTERS

Anxious—It is possible that you may attain several more inches in height, even though you are 19 years of age. Your weight at five feet should be about 110 pounds. The best thing that you can do for your hair to make it grow is to massage the scalp every day as massage circulates the blood and builds up a healthy condition, so new hair will be coming in and your present hair will be improving.

For the dandruff, massage some warm oil into the scalp a few hours before you shampoo your head, and if the dandruff is very bad use an ointment or oil in which there is some sulphur for the treatment before the shampoo.

Eva—You can help to round out the calves of your legs by massaging them daily with cocoa butter, but if you can add to your weight any, it is best to build up all over and you will not need to do anything else.

K. Unknown—I do not know how great an injury there was to the joint, but since you have succeeded in having the bunion cured, it is possible that most of the swelling will disappear. You may need something beside the cod liver oil, so it is better to consult the doctor if you do not build up as you feel that you should after experimenting with yourself for a few weeks.

A. J. H.—A goiter is always at the base of the throat on the thyroid gland. Putting iodine in the water is only one of many experiments to prevent or help cure this trouble. Untill comparatively recent times very little was known about the functions of the glands, but it will not be long now before there will be a great deal of valuable information compiled. Age has nothing to do with it.

Seventeen—Flaxen gold hair always changes to a darker shade as you grow up. It would not be becoming to you if it did not change as the shade is only attractive to children. I should think the streaks would no matter, as your hair shows that it is changing color at this time any way there is nothing that you should do about it.

Miss R. S.—You can bleach the hair on your legs so that it will not show through silk stockings. Apply peroxide each time after you bathe. Leona D.—A girl of 26 years, height five feet four inches, should weigh about 120 pounds. Peg—Rub salt into the tiny warts on your hands and keep the skin softened by using oil or a cream on it daily. These warts are not serious and disappear after a time, even if you did nothing to them.

Tomorrow—Your Dressing Table Edna Kent Forbes is now ready to fill a long-felt need on the part of her readers that of supplying the most important of her excellent beauty hints in illustrated pamphlet form. To secure this valuable information you must address Miss Forbes in care of this paper, asking for her pamphlet, "Beauty," and enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope (a. s. a. e.) and ten cents in stamps.

A rack of paper towels is handy for kitchen use. Borax is better than starch for delicate materials. An elaborate scarf will take away the plain look of a frock. All seafood should be used as soon after catching as possible.

COLOR CUT-OUTS Little Cinderella

TWELVE O'CLOCK.

Read today's chapter of the famous story of "Cinderella." If you cut and color the pictures every day you will soon have a whole set of paper dolls with which to act out the fairy tale. Th prince followed Cinderella everywhere and begged and entreated her to tell him who she was, but she would not. Again and again they danced together, and Cinderella was so happy she quite forgot to notice how fast the time was going. Suddenly the castle clock began to strike. With a cry of terror Cinderella snatched her hand from the prince

Vacant Chair Memorial Hospital Dedicated by Beautiful Services

An event which aroused unusual and sympathetic interest was the dedication of the Vacant Chair Memorial hospital at the Atlanta Child's home, which took place on Sunday afternoon, May 24. The hospital has been planned and built as a lasting memorial through the efforts of a group of mothers who have lost children.

The rooms of the hospital are spacious and airy and the white beds cool and comfortable for the little patients who will occupy them. A diet kitchen is an important feature of the building, and every convenience and comfort have been combined with beauty to make the hospital one of the most complete of its kind in the city.

Dr. L. O. Bricker conducted the impressive and fitting services and Mrs. F. P. Gaffney, the originator of the beautiful idea of the Vacant Chair circle, gave an interesting talk.

The next meeting of the circle will be held at the home of Mrs. James Stanley Moore on June 4, at 10:30 o'clock. All members are urged to be present.

State Street P. T. A.

The reception honoring the dedication, given by the P. T. A. of State Street school Friday evening, was a brilliant event. The school building

Little Theater Guild Will Present Play.

The Little Theater guild will present A. A. Milne's "The Dodo" Monday at the Atlanta Women's club theater on Saturday evening, May 30.

The cast is composed of popular Atlanta amateur players. Miss Mattie White Kallam is playing the part of Anne, Miss Ellen Ross Lightfoot is charming in the role of Bustina. Channing Cox most typically impersonates Leonard, an English nobleman. George Ramey as Nicholas is just "spits and cane" and everything an Englishman Oxford should be. Glen Chambers, head builder in "a hotel" is assisted with a domestic force of four military servants, Katherine Sanchez, Helen Hargrave, Donald Gavin and W. Williams. The proprietor of the "hotel" is being played by the well-known amateur actor, George T. Bush, who as Mr. Latimer is a rather eccentric old English gentleman, with more money than necessary.

Tickets for this play may be obtained from members of the cast or the guild. The play will be given on May 30 at 8 p. m., at the Atlanta Women's club theater. Tickets are at a very popular price of 50 cents each, and can also be obtained at the door on the evening of the play.

"Where is Mansfield?" he demanded.

"Mr. Mansfield has left for the day," Jane repeated, "if it's something very important, you may find him at his own office."

"I'll say it's important!" the visitor shrugged. He gazed boldly and appreciatively around the office and included Jane in his scrutiny. "Not very handsome quarters, here, for a chap with Mansfield's money."

Jane replied with dignity.

"These are not Mr. Mansfield's offices; they are temporary quarters where he is directing a charity drive."

"Oh, I see," the visitor's tone took on more assurance, "well I guess I'll trouble you over to his regular offices and have a look at it. You his stenographer?"

Jane made a frigid inclination of the head.

"I am Mr. Mansfield's secretary during the drive."

"He is some guy, isn't he? And always an eye for a pretty girl!" (He stared at her boldly.)

Jane resumed her work pointedly.

"Many women come here to see him," he said, "and he is searching the desk as though he looked hopefully for some significant trifle."

"I prefer not to discuss my employer," Jane replied icily. "I think I have told you that Mr. Mansfield is gone. I must ask you to excuse me while I finish some important work."

"Touchy little creature, aren't you? I can see your hair just missed being red."

The man looked her over appreciatively and she stared back at him haughtily.

"Where is my husband? I was to meet him here at his office. They tell me he has not been there."

"But he left here for the day, Mrs. Mansfield. Jane was beginning when the man stopped forward."

To Jane's amazement, his manner had changed completely. He bowed to Helen Mansfield with the grace of a courtier and his voice was suave and cultured when he said:

"Mrs. Mansfield, will you permit me to introduce myself? I am an old acquaintance of your husband's. We met at the house of a mutual friend of whom we are both very fond. My name is Davidson."

Helen gave him her gloved hand with a little air that she had recently cultivated.

"It's always a pleasure to meet my husband's friends, but why hasn't he brought you to the house?"

"I have been away a great deal. Davidson replied smoothly. "He spoke of it often, but I should really much prefer to have the invitation to call from his charming wife."

"Do come, by all means. Wednesday is my day at home each week. You know," she laughed, "the men who come to women's teas are always frightfully spoiled by the fuss we make over them."

He accepted eagerly. They were just starting out, chatting like old friends without so much as an adieu to Jane, when the door opened again and Mansfield came in.

At the sight of Davidson and his wife together, his face went deadly white.

MORE GARDEN FAVORITES.

"In this next bed, Mr. Burbank, we have a border of marigolds with nasturtiums beyond, and at the back, young cosmos just beginning life."

"I am sure all three of these have passed under your hands and will be all the better understood and liked for that reason."

"The marigold," said Mr. Burbank, "has been through quite a process of training and education, and in some respects has perhaps reached its limit of variation, if such a state is possible, but some interesting forms have been developed."

"And there are wild marigolds as well?" I asked.

"Yes, there is a species from Arizona which grows as a shrub and bears in the autumn single yellow flowers. This I have crossed with African marigolds and the smaller French marigolds and also with a new species from Chile."

"Next comes cosmos, and very unlike its garden cousins."

"Some of the hybrids were single and some were double, with fringed petals symmetrically arranged like shingles on a roof and composing a very striking flower."

"Next comes cosmos, although not yet in bloom," I said.

"Yes, and cosmos belongs to the composite family although so late in blooming. This is probably because it is a sub-tropical plant and has brought its blooming habits with it."

"Has the cosmos been trained out of it yet?" I asked.

"Yes," answered Mr. Burbank, "varieties have been produced that bloom in midsummer. They are a great addition to the garden as a background for lower growing plants. If care is taken to make the right color combinations."

"Did it take long to set the blooming time ahead?"

"No, the plant was modified in a few generations, comparatively speaking, and this shows that it is both pliable and variable and proves it to be a good subject for the experimenter."

"New shades of color as well as larger and finer flowers have also been produced, with wider petals and in some cases twisted petals, and the plant has not by any means been developed to the first limits of variation."

"Have nasturtiums, too, been among improved plants, Mr. Burbank? And are they from the tropics?"

"They are from Peru and Chile

Woman's Club Hears Report And Installs New Officers

Installation of officers, reports of departments and committees, a brief address by Professor Willis Sutton and a beautiful musical program were features of the meeting of the Atlanta Women's club Monday afternoon.

Professor Sutton spoke on the state educational program. This program calls for increased appropriation for common schools; for equalization fund for county schools where maintenance is not sufficient to run the schools longer than five months in the year; an appropriation to adequately meet needs of the university system, and for a two-year appropriation for eradication of illiteracy. Professor Sutton appealed to the club members to stand back of this program when the legislature meets this summer, and closed his remarks by stating that one of the greatest needs in Georgia was educated, trained leadership.

Mrs. Norman Sharp, president, presided over the meeting, emphasizing the importance of reports of the various departments and committees of the club, and pointing out the larger achievements which have been accomplished as a result of these activities. She paid a great tribute to the women for their loyal support and splendid results achieved in the splendid work of her committees in citizenship training, Americanization work among foreigners and other activities coming under this department.

Mrs. John D. Evans, chairman of the citizenship department, told of the splendid work of her committee in citizenship training, Americanization work among foreigners and other activities coming under this department.

Obear, chairman of resolutions, also reported.

Mrs. Newton C. Wing told of the civic drive committee's work. Mrs. George Ripley gave a report of the building committee and its achievement in having the beautiful new swimming pool so near its completion, and she commended the president, Mrs. Sharp, for her work in securing funds and material through friends of the club.

Coin Sale Appeal.

Mrs. Wilmer Moore, chairman of the memorial coin sale in the Atlanta Women's division, urged the club to make the organization a 100 per cent in the purchase of coins, and Mrs. Moore started sale in the club by purchasing the first two certificates.

She announced that Mrs. L. D. T. Quinby would have charge of sale in the Women's club, assisted by Mrs. A. P. Treadwell.

Preceding the reports of the departments, a beautiful musical program was given by Mrs. W. O. Chears, when she sang "The Star," by Rogers and "Woodman's Birthday," by Huntington. Mrs. Chears possesses a rich soprano voice. Mrs. Charles Chalmers was at the piano.

Mrs. Sharp closed the program by introducing new officers and by expressing appreciation of the service rendered during the past year by all officers and chairmen of committees and departments.

The following new officers were installed: Mrs. Norman Sharp, president; Mrs. D. F. Stevenson, first vice president; Mrs. Guy Woolford, second vice president; Mrs. John R. Hornady, recording secretary; Mrs. E. Carter, assistant recording secretary; Mrs. George Ripley, correspondence secretary; Mrs. E. W. Williamson, assistant treasurer, and Mrs. John Hunter, auditor.

HORACE EATON

They at last reached the bank of the creek. He carried Mary to the water, and bathed her face, watching anxiously. The sight he waited for, finally appeared—she opened her eyes, and smiled.

Meanwhile Bud in the plane circled as low as possible above the smoking forest, looking down intently through field glasses for any sign of the lost ones. It seemed a hopeless and futile task. He could see nothing, and if he had seen them he could figure no way in which he could reach them.

Giving up, but still flying low, he swung over the stream which flowed below the bluff at the edge of the forest. Looking down he saw two waving figures. He came lower and recognized them. But there was no place to land on this side of the stream. He maneuvered about, looking for a landing, and finally located a flat spot on the other bank. In a few minutes he swooped down, brought the plane to a stop there, and climbed out.

He was half a mile or so below the spot where he had seen Mary and Terence. He waited impatiently, and soon saw them coming down the other bank. They waited, and waited, into the stream, and wading and swimming, finally joined him.

"We must hurry right back to the ranch," Bud said after expressing his joy to find them alive after their ordeal. "They have sent for your father, thinking you are dead. He will be worrying himself to death." They climbed into the plane and started aloft.

Just as the sheriff's posse, with its prisoner, was passing the gates of the Bar M ranch, there was a buzzing sound in the sky. Miquel, excited, pointed upward and cried: "Senor Marshall, look—the plane. Maybe she is in it—maybe Miss Mary is saved."

New hope started in old Marshall's breast. He begged the sheriff for permission to stop a few moments. It was granted. The procession halted, and while the plane swooped toward the ground, Miquel rushed into the ranch to meet it. At the same moment Taggart came out of the ranch house.

Marshall gazed nervously at the machine descending, trying to make out who was in it. At last it touched the ground, taxied to a stop. "Thank God!" cried Marshall, as he saw the three figures climb out of the plane.

Miquel seized Mary by her hand and dragged her to her father, Terence, Taggart and Bud followed. "See, senor, she lives, she lives," Miquel cried. "Oh, I knew she must—I was praying so hard."

"Daddy, daddy," screamed Mary. "Where does it mean? Where are they taking you?" Marshall dismounted the sheriff and his men, touched, did not interfere, even though it was a technical violation of the rights of a prisoner.

Mary flew to his arms. "Don't worry, my dear," Marshall said, kissing her, stroking her head, and choking back his emotions. "They got me at last—but I'm happy—so happy that you are alive."

Taggart came up, shook hands with Marshall, and feigned the deepest sympathy. "But don't worry," he said. "I'm a lawyer and I'll take care of your interests. I'll see the judge first thing in the morning about bail."

Terence and others came up and shook Marshall's hand and tried to cheer him. Finally the sheriff broke in with: "Sorry, Marshall, we'll have to cut it short now and go alone."

Mary, supported in Terence's strong arms, stared vacantly down the road as the procession moved on and vanished in the distance.

CHAPTER XV.
Stella Montrose, the news of John Marshall's arrest, reviving interest in the old murder case that had remained unsolved for fifteen years, created a stir throughout the state of Arizona. It was shrieked from the headlines of every newspaper.

Up in the city of Bisbee, Ariz., a woman who had once been pretty, and who still made herself attractive, awakened just before noon, slipped into a fancy silken negligee, lighted a cigarette and rang for her maid to order breakfast. She reclined on the lounge in her luxurious apartment, which was furnished like an Arabian Nights' dream, and the morning paper was brought to her.

The headline caught her eye: JOHN MARSHALL CAPTURED, FUGITIVE FOR 15 YEARS. Faces Told of Murder Of "Black" Benway.

She straightened up and read the dispatch with great eagerness, her eyes jumping from phrase to phrase: "Trapped while making a stealthy return last evening to his ranch near Pico, after hiding across the Mexican border for fifteen years, John Marshall, well-known cattleman, once reputed wealthy, was arrested and taken to the Pico jail to await trial for the murder of 'Black' Benway."

"After the slaying of Benway on the night of Stella Montrose dropped the paper and rang excitedly for her maid. "Pack my bag right away, Annie," she ordered, "and call for my car. I'm driving to Pico today."

Marshall, a sick and weary man, sat in his cell. Mary, Terence, and Taggart, who had come up to Pico first thing in the morning to visit him, sat clustered about him. "Daddy, we must get you out of this terrible place at once," Mary was saying.

Taggart was acting the part of the solicitous friend and attorney. "Don't worry, don't worry," he kept saying. "I'll take care of your father. We'll get him out of this. The jury will free him."

"But can't we do something in the meantime?" Mary begged. "Well, I'll try," Taggart answered. "I'll go right over to the judge now and see about bail. Meanwhile, I advise that you transfer your money from Latigo to the Pico bank at once, so that it will be ready for this and other emergencies."

"Oh, I can't leave Daddy at this time to go," said Mary. "Let me go," Terence volunteered. She accepted his proposal, and directing the bankbook from her bag, gave it to him with an order for the money. "We'll get busy at once," said Terence. "You stay with your father a while, and come to my office later, and I'll let you know what the judge says about bail."

Terence and Taggart went out together, and mounting their horses parted on their respective missions. But as Terence disappeared on the road to Latigo, Taggart, instead of going to the judge, turned to the Pico Bar. He found Buck McLeod and several of the men inside.

Buck grinned as Taggart whispered to him. "Lay for him in the Upper Canyon, when he's riding back with the money," Taggart concluded his directions. "He will come back through the upper canyon—you understand?"

They left the bar, Buck and his gang taking the road to Latigo, Taggart starting for his law offices. The elegant car, and the flashily dressed woman skillfully painted to still look pretty, at the driver's wheel, attracted considerable attention from the rough natives of Pico when it stopped at the Hotel Rio Grande.

A group of them were still curiously inspecting the car when Stella Montrose, after arranging for a room, returned to it from inside the hotel.

"Can you direct me to John Marshall's attorney?" she asked. "Oh, that'll be Mr. Taggart, lady," replied one of the men, and pointed the way.

Stella sped off in the direction indicated. Taggart was at his desk when she knocked on the office door. "Come in."

As Stella entered with an easy air of assurance, Taggart rose to greet her, and indicated a chair. "I understand you're acting for John Marshall, Mr. Taggart?" Stella asked.

"Yes, I'm his attorney," he replied. "And what can I do for you?" Stella eyed him keenly, and said slowly: "I have certain evidence that might be worth—well, you know what I mean."

She shrugged and smiled. Taggart regarded her suspiciously, and asked: "Just what is the evidence you say you have?"

Stella, with her skill as an actress acquired during her life as a shrewd adventurer, took her time, lighted a cigarette, smiled blandly and worked to produce an effect before replying. Finally she said, with her eyes full for Taggart's, and a curious smile on her lips:

"Black Benway did not die from Marshall's bullet. I can prove it if Marshall makes it worth my while."

She puffed at her cigarette, and Taggart, on his guard, stared at her intently. With another worldly-wise glance, Stella added:

"You're a lawyer—you know what I mean." Taggart gripped his desk, and asked savagely: "Is this straight?"

Retaining her own calm, easy manner, she looked at him with an agitation, and simply nodded "Yes."

Taggart quickly pulled himself together, tried to conceal his nervousness, and said with affected calm: "I'd just as soon this evidence did not come out."

Stella asked: "Friends and attorneys sometimes have interests which conflict with those of their clients." Taggart answered: "In this case it happens that any jury would convict Marshall on the evidence against him. His conviction would give me ownership of the Bar M ranch—and I have certain very good reasons of my own for wanting to obtain that property."

"I think I understand," said Stella, looking at him shrewdly. "I'm staying in an apartment house myself—in Bisbee. I could use $25,000 awfully well."

Their eyes met understandingly. After a moment's thought Taggart said: "If you will forget all about Black Benway, I'll raise the cash before night. Agreed?"

Stella nodded approval, said, "I'm stopping at the Hotel Rio Grande." Then she glided out of the office. Taggart staring after her, his face crossed by bewildering anxieties and mistrust.

CHAPTER 16.
Topaz Taggart's Love. When Mary came to Taggart's office that afternoon he greeted her with an air of kindness. "I'm so sorry," he said. "But the judge refused absolutely to give bail. It's hard to get on a murder charge, you know, and especially since your father has been a fugitive for so long."

Mary's face clouded with disappointment. "Still, don't worry," Taggart hastened to add. "Trial has been set for one week from today—and then we'll get him free." She smiled reassuringly. "You can count on me to do everything—everything possible, to win his case—for my old friend."

Mary's face still betrayed her anxiety. "But—but if the case should go against us—if they find him guilty?" she cried, and broke down in tears. Taggart came over to her and patted her on the shoulder.

"There, there," he said, "we'll get him off." He paused, then added, "Of course in these matters, you never can tell what a jury may do—and there is always the chance, however remote, that the verdict will go against us."

Mary shuddered and a renewed flood of tears burst from her eyes. Taggart's huge, uncouth hand continued to pat her and he said: "Even then—if that should happen—don't think it will, but if it should—yes, Mary—you can count on your father's old friend, Topaz Taggart."

Becoming aware of the meaning behind Taggart's advances, Mary stopped crying, wiped her eyes, and looking at Taggart asked: "Has Terence returned from Latigo yet?"

Taggart frowned.

"Abie's Irish Rose."

(Coming to Atlanta Theater.)

That Atlanta theatergoers are vividly interested in the coming of the laugh sensation, "Abie's Irish Rose," to the Atlanta theater for a week's engagement, starting next Monday night, June 1, is attested by the long line at the box office when the last sale opened yesterday morning.

The management is confident of its wonderful success here, as it is the other prominent cities where this far-spread, and it seems as if the number of people witnessing this wonderful play will only be governed by the capacity of the theater. Rene Brennan, Harvey Hays, George Fredericks, Edward Pascal, P. S. Barrett, Edwin Maynard, Mildred Elliott, Wilbur Brann and other Broadway favorites present the play. The box office will be open 10 a. m. to 8 p. m.

"The Little French Girl."

(At the Howard.)

The "Little French Girl," the Herbert Brennan farce, which opened at the Howard theater yesterday, pleased the thousands of patrons of that popular theater who flocked to see it. "The Little French Girl" is based on the immensely popular novel of the same name by Anne Douglas Sedgwick. The story is that of a little French girl who is sent to England in search of a suitable marriage, which her mother's indiscretions have made impossible in France.

Mary Brian, Peter Pan fan, is seen in one of the leading roles. She is supported by Alice Joyce, Nell Hamilton and Ester Ralston.

Metropolitan, Atlanta and company are on the stage in a very cleverly arranged dance revue.

Alex Reese, conducting the Howard Symphony orchestra, offers selections from the popular Broadway musical, "No, No, Nanette," as the overture for the week.

A comedy featuring Harry Langdon in "Feet of Mud" is a scream from start to finish.

"A Broadway Butterfly."

(At the Rialto.)

Few pictures that have told of Broadway, the playground of the world, have achieved the note of scintillant color that is the outstanding characteristic of "A Broadway Butterfly," the feature picture at the Rialto theater, which introduces to local patrons Miss Estelle Bradley, the Atlanta beauty, winner of the Atlanta Constitution beauty contest last year and representative of Atlanta in the Atlantic City national beauty tournament. In her first major motion picture role.

In addition to Miss Bradley, who was one of the first to see the picture when it was screened at the Rialto Monday as the special guest of Manager W. T. Murray, Louise Fazenda, Cullen Landis, Dorothy Doyne, John Roche, Willard Louis, Willard Louis and Eugene Gilbert give sparkling interpretations of characters of Broadway, especially those connected with the world behind the limelight in this romance of the stage. The picture is full of human interest and appeal.

William W. Huber conducts the Rialto orchestra in a snappy musical program. There is a good comedy.

Barbara La Marr.

(At the Metropolitan.)

The term may have been applied before, but it is not, we'd like to name Barbara La Marr for the title of "Circus of the Screen."

Our inspiration came yesterday after witnessing her latest offering, "The Heart of a Siren," which opened at the Metropolitan theater.

Miss La Marr has added charms in her new picture, "The Heart of a Siren," which is a story of old, luring mariners to their doom upon her rocky shores, turn green with envy. She has beauty of face and figure of course; and she has, particularly in this picture, a wealth of lavish costumes which would rival a Fifth avenue show.

In fact, as we review the action, we seem to see an ocean of billowy sails and satiny waves with the beautiful star swimming through them. Don't miss it. A box news and a Mack Sennett comedy.

TALLULAH RAILROAD CASE IS DISMISSED

Washington, May 25.—The supreme court today dismissed for want of jurisdiction a case coming from Georgia, brought by G. V. Coffee and other employees to prevent a change in wages of the Tallulah Falls railway, which runs through the counties of Habersham and Rabun in North Carolina.

KNEW GNU WAS NOT NEW

Uncle Bob Guessed Answer But Found It Difficult to Explain.

Sister Sue was working on a crossword puzzle, when Uncle Bob, who knows everything, came into the room, and was at once interrogated as follows:

"What is a South African ruminant?"

"Why, that's the gnu animal," replied Uncle Bob.

"Yes, but what's the name of the new animal—what's the word—three letters?" asked the excited Susanne.

"Gnu," her uncle replied.

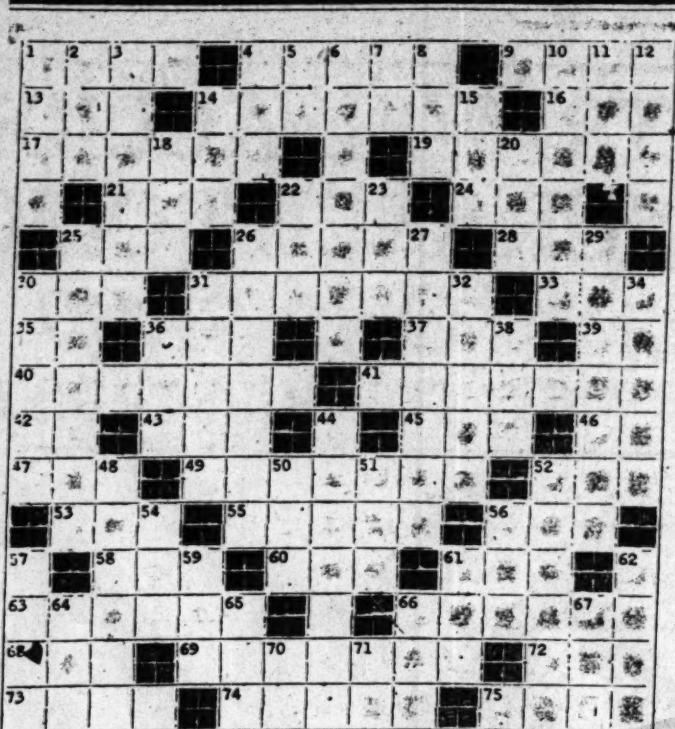

"New? No! I mean the name of the new animal you mentioned."

"But new? does not match the second letter—or any of them."

"Well, gnu is not new—I thought you knew. There are three such words, all pronounced about the same, but spelled differently: knew, new and gnu, said Uncle Bob as he carefully spelled each word.

In case of doubt, refer to the dictionary. And the ideal dictionary for crossword puzzle solvers can be had by every reader who clips a coupon and presents it with two others and the small expense added therein.

JULY 4 SELECTED FOR DEFENSE DAY

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER.

Washington, May 25.—A defense day demonstration will be held July 4, war department officials decided late Monday after their Armistice day plan had been rejected by President Coolidge.

At first, it was thought that the shortness of time before Independence Day would make the organizing of a mobilization test too difficult, but it was decided to undertake the task and make the affair as extensive as the limited time would permit.

Army officials were reluctant to break the tradition of a national defense day which they sought to establish with the first annual test last September.

Demonstration Must Be Voluntary.

While President Coolidge said he did not have any objection to a test held on some other day than November 11, he emphasized that the demonstration must be purely voluntary on the part of the states and instructed the war department to emphasize this point if it decided to carry out the plan.

"I have no objection to the holding of the test this year," President Coolidge said in his letter, "but I do not approve your proposal that it be held on Armistice day. If you consider it desirable to hold the defense test this year, I would suggest July 4 as being a more appropriate date. Otherwise, I think it desirable to get authority of congress if any day not a national holiday is proposed."

It occurs to me that year communications to the governors of several states should emphasize that their response to the proposed test plans is purely voluntary.

Dependent Upon States.

"I mention this for the reason that their action must necessarily be predicated on what they consider to be the best interests of their states."

When the Armistice day plan was put forward by the general staff recently, President Coolidge made it known that he favored keeping this day set apart as a day associated with thoughts of peace rather than those of war. He also objected to any additional expense for the mobilizations, and, furthermore, let it be known that he preferred to have congress determine whether such an event should be held annually.

STUDEBAKER SISTER DIES AT AGE OF 85

South Bend, Ind., May 25.—Miss Maria Studebaker, sister of the seven brothers who founded the Studebaker corporation, and the last to bear their name, died here late tonight on the eve of her 85th birthday.

The magic of make-believe

GIVE a boy a toy pistol, and first thing you know he is playing robber—with a handkerchief for a mask.

Equip him with a Corona Typewriter, and just as readily he can be the part of business man or author.

Play is real life to a child—and that is why parents should provide playthings that start right habits of mind and body.

Every home should own a Corona, and every child should learn to use it as early as possible. With Corona a child will teach himself to write, punctuate, and coordinate mind and muscle. He has a talent for writing, Corona will help bring it out. And in time, the grown-ups will appreciate Corona quite as much as the youngsters.

Corona Four costs only $60. Easy terms if desired. Call or phone for demonstration.

New Trial Plea In Wright Case Slated for Today

Greenboro, Ga., May 25.—A motion for new trial in the case of Ted Wright and E. L. McClellan, convicted of the murder of Prof. W. C. Wright, near Eatonton, early in March and sentenced to death, will be heard before Judge James B. Parks, here tomorrow.

That certain jurors had made statements as to the boys' guilt and certain parts of Judge Parks' charge will be the main basis of the defense attorney's contention.

FEDERAL FARM LOAN RATES ARE GIVEN CUT

Washington, May 25.—(By the Associated Press.)—The Federal Farm Loan board today took the first step in what is to be a general reduction of rates of interest charged farmers by federal land banks, authorizing a new rate of 5.14 per cent for the Omaha district, effective June 1. The present rate is 5.12 per cent.

While there was no official statement relative to the rate announcement in the other districts, it was understood that the board was considering reductions as great as one-half of one per cent in some of them.

LODGE NOTICES

Practically every Atlanta lodge has abandoned the use of letter notices of meetings, now using this column of The Constitution for all such notices. Every lodge member in Atlanta looks to this column for all calls and any meeting notice published in it in the morning has time to reach every member before night. It is the surest and the cheapest way!

East Point Chapter, No. 97, will hold its regular convocation this (Tuesday) evening, May 26, at 7:30 o'clock. In one of the opinions, by Justice Butler, with Chief Justice Taft dissenting, the court held that Midemitsu, a Japanese who entered the United States in 1913 and served substantially from that time until May, 1923, in the United States coast guard service, was entitled to naturalization under the law extending citizenship privileges to aliens who served in the army, navy and coast guard during the war.

In two other opinions, by Justice McReynolds, the court held that Chinese wives could be brought to the United States by their husbands, ineligible to citizenship, but by American citizens of Chinese parentage.

Toyota was admitted to citizenship by the federal district court of Massachusetts. Subsequently, on motion of the government, the certificate of naturalization was cancelled on the ground that it had been illegally procured. The supreme court held that the cancellation was proper because the law relating to the naturalization of persons serving in the coast guard during the war did not amend the law relating to the naturalization of persons of Japanese descent.

GOVERNOR APPOINTS MISSOURI SENATOR

Jefferson City, Mo., May 25.—(By the Associated Press.)—The appointment of G. H. Williams, of St. Louis, to succeed the late United States Senator Selden P. Spencer, was announced today by Governor Samuel Baker.

Governor Baker kept the announcement secret until today in keeping with a declaration he made following the sudden death of Senator Spencer in Washington a week ago.

Williams is a republican and is an attorney of St. Louis. His home is at Webster Grove, in St. Louis county. He is a former circuit judge.

Body of Girl Heiress, Long Missing, Found

London, May 25.—Night after night the Hon. Gertrude Morgan, daughter of the wealthy Lord Tredegar, with a party of adventurous friends, would forsake the incandescent West End for the dimly lit sections of Limehouse, pressed the belief the girl must have stayed some time in the underworld before her life was ended in the murky river.

But one night the 30-year-old girl did not return. Since last December 11 police have been searching through the dingy underworld haunts it was the body of the girl.

The sequel came Monday. Her body, badly decomposed, was found in the sluggish waters near the Rotherhithe wharves, across from Limehouse.

When the girl disappeared she was known to have 70 pounds in her possession. Lord Tredegar, one of the wealthiest coal mine owners in England, employed several private detectives in an effort to aid Scotland Yard in its search, but no trace was ever found.

But with discovery of her body, which was identified with the aid of markings on her finger, the mystery was solved. The girl must have stayed some time in the underworld before her life was ended in the murky river.
